"All things," including the Broadway cable, "come to him who waits."

Home Rule again Gladstone's theme— "Still Gladstone's theme" would be better.

There is said to be an apprehension that some New York plums will get overripe before they fall.

The question of this morning: Will Mr. Starnie name his six rapid transit millionaires to-day?

Greek met Greek in New York yesterday. But there was no sign of war. They all pulled the same way.

Evidence accumulates that Kansas has gone clean slate. There is an agitation now for an extra session of the Legislature.

The striking clothing-cutters have worked out a big pattern for their next suit. And they believe the goods are warranted not to shrink.

The count of New York base-hits at Holyoke yesterday indicates that Mickey Welch's pitching arm was one of the open arms with which he received the old fellow-Giants.

Not much has been said of the phenomenal facility with which the State Senate and Assembly have agreed on date which is not Mr. Croker's date for final adjournment.

Now that the bill to increase their pay has again been buried in an Assembly committee, probably New York City's bremen would like to turn the hose on the gentlemen who assisted in the interview.

The camera has been brought into use in St. Louis to take snapshots at repeaters at the polls. A new and revised order of anti-snappers may be expected in the Missouri metropolis.

Florence Human, aged ten years, appears in a local police court as an expert shoplifter. It was hardly necessary to produce so striking a demonstration of the old truth that "To err is Human."

Principal Keeper Cunningham has been absent from Sing Sing Prison but five days in nineteen years. And there are men in the institution who can beat even that record.

GORMAN'S FREAK.

The remarks of Senator Gorman to sixty "active Democrats" from a single county in Maryland, who flock to Washington to lay claim to Federal patronage in their county, are not marked by that propriety and good taste that are usually characteristic of the Senator's words and actions.

Senator Gorman told the gourmets that he would not encourage them, neither did he wish to discourage them. All they can do, he said, is to recommend, but it does not follow that their recommendations are adopted. Many suggestions made to the appointing power had been ignored, while some had been accepted, he added. Influences are being brought to bear now that may affect our ability to secure many of the offices that should go to our friends."

What right has Senator Gorman to throw out these institutions of unfairness against the President? He, of course, knows that President Cleveland is not likely to appoint a host of incapable and unfit specimens to public office at the bidding of the Maryland or any other Congressional delegation. Does he seek to make a little cheap political capital for himself among such men by pretending that he does his best to fasten them upon the public eye, but is prevented by undue "influences" that are brought to bear upon the President?

To Commissioner Brennan this is a gross afflicting and even ugly picture that must coincide with him on the sudden loss of his valuable assistant, a warm sun and a refreshing breeze, one to dry up the dirt and the other to carry it off through the air. The question is, what will he do without those most efficient of his sweepers and sweepers?

Another IDOL GETS IT IN THE NECK.

Here we are glorifying the late Sir Christopher Columbus by getting up a World's Fair in his honor, saying all sorts of good things about him, and crowning over the world pictures of him in the role of America's discoverer, that his recommendations will always receive friendly and favorable consideration from the President when they are proper to be made. He knows also that he is powerless to persuade Mr. Cleveland to appoint any improper person to a public trust simply because he happens to be a useful political tool. It is unworthy of a Senator of Mr. Gorman's distinction to make any misrepresentation of these facts for his own fancied political advantage.

A GOOD APPOINTMENT INDICT.

President Cleveland yesterday made an appointment that everybody ought to be satisfied with, inasmuch as it was asked for and warmly indorsed by Republicans as well as Democrats. Besides, it puts an exceptionally good man into an important office, which has been for some time filled by an exceptionally objectionable man.

Judge William Loebren, of Minnesota, was named as Commissioner of Penitentiaries, in place of the unsavory and undesirable Bauer. His nomination was asked for by the unanimous vote of the Republican Legislature of his State.

A BRAVE SOLDIER, AN UPRIGHT, HONORABLE, HONEST MAN. The new Pension Commissioner is in striking contrast with his predecessor, and his accession to the position will mark the beginning of a new era in the management of the Pension office. His character is shown in the fact that while a strong Democrat, he was appointed by a Republican Governor to his vacancy in the Circuit Court, and was twice elected to the same place without opposition.

LAW AND COMMON SENSE.

The Supreme Court of the United States has just decided that, when a fugitive from justice is surrendered by one State on the requisition of another, he can be tried for any crime he may have committed in the State to which he is surrendered. He cannot claim to be tried only for the offense set forth in the warrant of extradition, as in the case of a person sent back to a foreign country.

It is surprising how any intelligent person could have put any other construction on the law. A foreigner must be tried alone for the crime for which he was extradited, because otherwise the Government to which he returned, after getting him in its power, might put him on trial for a political offense. The rendition of a fugitive by one of our own States is simply a police regulation. As soon as the alleged crime is within the jurisdiction of the State to which he belongs, he can be tried for any offense against its laws he may have committed.

GHOST STORIES FROM WASHINGTON.

Stories have come from Washington to the effect that there is a ghost in the Cabinet. It is said to be a sort of specter, like the ghost of Hamlet's father. Within the triangle secretaries know nothing about doing his best to warn the atmosphere and assist the chills.

According to this gossip, the cause of the coldness is the making of appointments at the White House without the knowledge of the heads of the State and Treasury Departments. Assistant Secretaries, it is alleged, are dumped down to the Treasury building, of which the Secretary of the Treasury knows nothing and people are forced to foreign missions and embassies of whom he has no knowledge.

The chief difficulty the telephones immediately will have in determining personalities is that the State and the Treasury Departments are dumped down to the Treasury building, of which the Secretary of the Treasury knows nothing and people are forced to foreign missions and embassies of whom he has no knowledge.

Not much has been said of the phenomenal facility with which the State Senate and Assembly have agreed on date which is not Mr. Croker's date for final adjournment.

Now that the bill to increase their pay has again been buried in an Assembly committee, probably New York City's bremen would like to turn the hose on and contemplated retirement from the Cabinet. Mr. Cleveland is too frank and straightforward to make any appointment without the knowledge of his Secretaries, and both Secretaries Carlisle and Graham are too sensible not to know that Mr. Cleveland is President, and is not the sort of person to take part in the guile of advisers, in the Presidency.

CAN IT BE REVIVED?

The Republic of Columbia has extended the concession to the Panama Canal Company to build the Isthmus canal, for a period of twenty months. Within that time a new company must be organized and the work must be resumed. It is said that the terms have been accepted by the liquidator of the old company and the effort at reorganization and resumption will be imminent.

It is not likely that the tool of the liquidator will be an easy one. Capital will be very cautious how it touches this contaminated enterprise. The "Admiral" of American sentiment can no longer be undertaken with any hope of success. There are not likely to be any more influential syndicate of bankers to capture Cuban ministers, convince members of Congress and kill the Monroe doctrine. The United States will have nothing to do with the new company, and our own Nicaragua, home to a young widow, will be very hard to find.

Would you kindly inform me, my lady, if the "Admiral" of American sentiment can no longer be undertaken with any hope of success.

The young admiral is an entertainment in himself, and he works persistently through his agents, into which he has introduced a number of new specialties. Hearing him sing "It's English, You know," it is easy to understand how the town went wild over the song eight years ago. Although the air has become a "lark number," and has been whistled into rags and tatters, it is once again as lively as lively sings it. The imitation of Irving is so completely true and so marvelously clever, that it will always be in demand. His dance episode, in which he imitates "Fiddler, Collins, Vanoni, with everyone else," is a masterpiece. "Papercote and Camerata" is worth seeing. It made an immense hit with the audience.

Take it all in all, there are not two fives, and that's all there is to it. The grand "Admiral" (Why doesn't somebody write a book called "How to Enjoy, Through Laughter?" will deprive us of the stupidity of "Admirals"), but the most fascinating individual is quite admirable. One or two incidents in "Admiral" might be omitted advantageously. The choruses of the "Admirals" are no longer of any use, for the tigers appear to have aged to have reached that trying period when—according to the Chevalier—any young man should be kept under glass cases, and not let out until they have reached their maximum of deformity. Then the quartet should be murdered. Four men who can bravely forward and sing "Anne Laurie" in April, 1893, should be simply done to death, and electrocution is too good for them.

I don't want to lose my little ones," she said this morning, "but I am obliged to give up my room. I can't earn enough to support us, and we are situated. One mind two children is as much as any one individual can do, and I often feel compelled to do a great deal more. I have three children, and I have as well, I thought, that I might be able to find some institution where I could board them by the week or month. There are not many such places, but I have found a few, and the hours will be hard, if not inconvenient. I would have them up at 6 o'clock, and have breakfast at 7, and go to school at 8 o'clock, and then would be half past 9 o'clock."

FASHION FOR PRACTICALLY NOTHING.

The "Admiral" is capital, but the stage and the indications are that it will prosper. The public drove Dixey back to "Admiral." His not to reason why, his but to do or die.

ALAN DALE.

HAS A WONDERFUL MEMORY.

A Florentine Who Seems Never to Have Forgotten Anything.

Splaster Annie Maria von Schurmann was the name of a woman who lived at Utrecht during the sixteenth century. She was so learned a woman that all men of science of that day considered her a marvel. She spoke German, French, English, Italian, Latin, Greek and Hebrew with equal facility, and even understood the Syrian, Chaldean, Arabic and Ethiopic tongues. Astronomy, geography, philosophy and theology were her special hobbies, and she wrote many interesting pamphlets on these subjects. Aside from this, she was a painter, sculptor and engraver of high degree, and played and devised several musical instruments. She was held in high esteem by and corresponded with many of the prominent savans of the age, even with Richelieu, Queen Anne of France, Elizabeth of Poland and Christine of Sweden. She died unmarried at the age of seventy-two.

Furniture Polish.

The First of Her Kind.

Mrs. M. M. Anderson of Potosi, was elected as assistant Sergeant-at-Arms of the Arkansas House of Representatives on Jan. 14. This is the first time a woman has been elected to that position.

Borneo Marriage Rite.

A tribe of Dusuns, in North Borneo, differ widely in language, religion and customs from other tribes bearing that name. Marriages are performed in the forest in the presence of two families. There is no public gathering or feast. The rite consists in transferring a drop of blood from a small incision made with a wooden knife in the calf of the man's leg, and letting it fall into the mouth of the woman.

"Admiral" is capital, but the stage and the indications are that it will prosper. The public drove Dixey back to "Admiral." His not to reason why, his but to do or die.

ALAN DALE.

Fashionable Attire.

Just at the present time it isn't fashionable to have any physical ailment unless it is something vague and popular under the general name of "nerves," and the odd thing about it is that it is only the more robust and vigorous women, so far as looks are concerned, that are tormented by this nervous prostration of virility, that have this nervous prostration of virility. If a woman looks pale and delicate she will never admit that she is not strong.

The fin de siecle girls, in bearing physical pain without a complaint, will seat themselves in the dentist's or dentist's chair as unconcernedly as if posing for the photographer, and submit to the most painful operations without a groan; in fact, assuring the operator "that it was really less painful than she expected." A car-driver will cry like a baby if subjected to half as much suffering.

"Admiral" is capital, but the stage and the indications are that it will prosper. The public drove Dixey back to "Admiral." His not to reason why, his but to do or die.

ALAN DALE.

Freckles.

There is no reliable preparation that will remove freckles, as they are surface discolourations, but spots in the true skin beneath. Bleaching out, by sunburn exposure to the sun, will bring about the desired result, and a course of dieting and baths will greatly improve the complexion and help to banish the obnoxious little brown specks.

The Green Veil.

The green veil is the rage, and it is fearful to behold some of the women behind it. Green is nature's color. It is the tint that everybody can wear with pleasing effect. But there are greens and greens, and the wrong green is worse than ugly—it is positively repulsive. The woman with a paralytic liver, with a yellow complexion, with freckles, with sallow eyes, or with a thin face, in which the shades gather, will be ghastly under a green veil. She must not accept a present of any stuff bordering on the lettuce, turnip or radish, which is known as spring greens, unless she wants to suggest quarantine, grass, ivy, oak, mugwort, asparagus and mhyrtle greens are always good, but beware of the olives, maple and flower shades. Babies and young children can wear anything, but maturity must study the effect of these things if she wishes to make the most of her charms.

"Admiral" is capital, but the stage and the indications are that it will prosper. The public drove Dixey back to "Admiral." His not to reason why, his but to do or die.

Bedroom Lamps.

Some attractive bedroom lamps have handles by which they may be carried, one is of Dresden china, with its small, curved base standing upon three legs, and has a twisted handle. Another is square in shape and has six handles aggressively angular. All are shaded by valances surmounted with collections of books and valuable manuscripts that he has never seen.

"Admiral" is capital, but the stage and the indications are that it will
